<input type="checkbox"/>	File an income tax return whether or not you owe taxes. When you file, you not only calculate the tax you owe, you also: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• claim a refund for any excess taxes you paid</li> <li>• claim benefits such as the sales tax credits, the Child Tax Benefit, and the Guaranteed Income Supplement</li> <li>• pay back overpayment of benefits such as Employment Insurance</li> <li>• accumulate room for tax-protected income such as RRSPs and TFSAs.</li> </ul>
<input type="checkbox"/>	Arrange to prepare taxes for the whole family. Often, expenses that won't benefit one member of the family can be transferred to another.
<input type="checkbox"/>	Plan ahead—don't wait until April. April 30 is the deadline for filing your taxes, but by then it's too late to plan. Planning your taxes early in the year gives you a chance to organize your affairs so that you pay only the taxes you must.
<input type="checkbox"/>	Start putting money in your RRSP before the deadline (usually March 1). Make regular contributions (monthly or every payday) and your savings will start to grow sooner.
<input type="checkbox"/>	Check carefully to ensure that you are claiming all the deductions you are entitled to, including deductions that can be transferred from another family member.
<input type="checkbox"/>	Use your tax refund to pay down debt or add to your investments. And save at least as much in the next year, even if you can cut back your tax deductions or instalments.
<input type="checkbox"/>	Sign up to the My Account services of the Canada Revenue Agency. You can use them any time to review your return, your refund, benefit payments and other information. Go to the CRA website for information.
<input type="checkbox"/>	Claim any refunds that you overlooked or recalculated for the past 10 years. (But remember that filing a revision could also result in scrutiny of your file by CRA auditors, who may ask for a correction of errors in favour of the Canada Revenue Agency.)
<input type="checkbox"/>	Check the experience, training and references before choosing a tax advisor. Some are certified by professional associations. Some have extensive tax training. Ask friends or others who have used tax services to recommend a good tax advisor.
<input type="checkbox"/>	Double-check the potential for fraud with tax transactions, especially those involving large amounts of money and investments. For information about tax frauds and how to avoid them, go to the Security pages of the CRA website.
