

Child Care Expenses Deduction for 2001

Definitions

The terms child care expenses, eligible child, supporting person, net income, and earned income, used on Form T778, Child Care Expenses Deduction for 2001, are defined on this page.

Child care expenses

Child care expenses are amounts you or another supporting person paid to have someone look after an eligible child so that you or the other supporting person could:

- earn income from employment;
- carry on a business either alone or as an active partner;
- attend school under the conditions described in the section called "Did you or the other supporting person attend school in 2001?" on the back of this sheet; or
- carry on research or similar work for which you or the other supporting person received a grant.

Usually, you can only deduct payments for services provided in Canada by a Canadian resident. See the section called "Other situations" on the back for exceptions.

Eligible child

Child care expenses can only be claimed for an eligible child. An eligible child is:

- your or your spouse or common-law partner's child; or
- a child who was dependent on you or your spouse or common-law partner, and whose net income in 2001 was $7,412 or less.

The child must have lived with you or the other supporting person when you or the other supporting person had the expenses. The child must have been under 16 years of age at some time in 2001. However, the age limit does not apply if, during 2001, the child was dependent on you or your spouse or common-law partner and is mentally or physically infirm.

Supporting person

Child care expenses can only be claimed by the eligible child's supporting persons. You are a supporting person if you are:

- the child's parent;
- the spouse or common-law partner of the child's parent; or
- an individual claiming an amount for the child on line 305, 306, or 315 of your Schedule 1.

There is another supporting person if the child's other parent, your spouse or common-law partner, or any individual claiming an amount for the child on line 305, 306, or 315 of his or her Schedule 1 lived with you at any time in 2001 and at any time during the first 60 days of 2002.

Net income

Net income is used to determine which supporting person will claim child care expenses. Use the amount from line 236 of your return without including any child care expenses (line 214) or social benefits repayment (line 235) you may be able to claim.

Earned income

Your earned income on line 6 in Part B of Form T778 is the total of:

- employment income (including tips and gratuities, and the non-taxable part of an allowance received as an emergency volunteer);
- net self-employment income, either alone or as an active partner (excluding losses);
- the taxable part of scholarships, bursaries, fellowships, and similar awards;
- net research grants;
- any earnings supplement received under a project sponsored by the Government of Canada to encourage employment or sponsored under Part II of the Employment Insurance Act or any similar program; and
- disability benefits received from the Canada Pension Plan or the Quebec Pension Plan.

Who can claim child care expenses?

To know who can claim child care expenses, you need to determine if you are the only supporting person, or if there is another supporting person.

If you are the only supporting person, you can claim child care expenses you paid while the eligible child was living with you.

In most situations where there is another supporting person, you can claim the child care expenses only if you have the lower net income (including zero income).

If there is another supporting person and you have the higher net income, you can make a claim only if Part C or D of Form T778 applies.

If there is another supporting person and you have equal net incomes, you have to agree on which one of you will claim the expenses.

If you got married or began living common law in 2001, you and your spouse or common-law partner have to consider your net incomes for the whole year. Include child care expenses you both paid for the whole year.

Canada Child Tax Benefit

For each eligible child who is under 7 years of age, there is a supplement of $220.92 to the basic benefit. The supplement is reduced by 25% of the child care expenses you and your spouse or common-law partner claim for children who are under 18 years old.

Child care expenses claimed on your 2001 returns will affect the supplement you may be entitled to receive for the period from July 2002 to June 2003.

You can claim less than the maximum child care expenses allowable if it is to your benefit. If you do not need your full child care expenses to reduce your 2001 federal tax to zero, it may be better to claim only what you need, since this may increase your supplement for the above-mentioned period. However, keep in mind that you cannot carry forward unclaimed expenses to another year.

What payments can you claim?

You can claim payments for child care expenses made to:

- individuals providing child care services;
- day nursery schools and day-care centres;
- educational institutions for the part of the fees that relate to child care services;
- day camps and day sports schools where the primary goal of the camp is to care for children (an institution offering a "sports study" program is not a sports school); and
- boarding schools, overnight sports schools, or camps where lodging is involved (see the note in Part A of Form T778).

You can also claim advertising expenses and placement agency fees.

When the child care services are provided by an individual, the individual cannot be:

- the child's father, mother, or a supporting person;
- a person for whom you or another supporting person of the child claimed an amount on line 305, 306, or 315 of Schedule 1; and
- a person under 18 who is related to you.

A related person is someone connected by a blood relationship, marriage, or adoption, such as your or your spouse or common-law partner's child, brother, sister, brother-in-law, or sister-in-law. Nieces, nephews, aunts, and uncles are not related persons.

Receipts – The individual or organization who received the payments must give you a receipt showing information about the services provided. When the child care services are provided by an individual, you will need the social insurance number of the individual. Do not send receipts with your return, but keep them in case we ask to see them. If you are using EFILE, show your receipts to your EFILE service provider.

Note: If you paid an individual to provide child care in your home, you may have some responsibilities as an employer. If you are not sure of your situation, contact us.

What payments can't you claim?

You cannot claim payments for medical or hospital care, clothing, or transportation costs.

For payments made to an educational institution, you cannot claim the part of the fees that relate to education costs, such as tuition fees of a regular program or a "sports study" program. For example, you cannot claim fees paid for Cub Scouts, tennis lessons, or other leisure activities or recreational expenses.

You cannot claim expenses if you or another supporting person received, or is entitled to receive, a reimbursement of the child care expenses or any other form of assistance not included in income. If your employer paid the child care expenses on your behalf, you can claim the part of the expenses included in your income.

Did you or the other supporting person attend school in 2001?

You may be able to claim child care expenses that allowed you and/or the other supporting person to attend school, if any of the following situations apply:

- You are the only supporting person and, at any time in 2001, you were enrolled in an educational program as described below (see Part D of Form T778).
- You are the supporting person with the higher net income, and the other supporting person, at any time in 2001, was enrolled in an educational program as described below (see Part C of Form T778).
- You are the supporting person with the higher net income, and you and the other supporting person, at the same time in 2001, were enrolled in an educational program as described below (see Part C and Part D of Form T778).

The educational program has to be offered by a secondary school, college, university, or other designated educational institution. This includes any institution certified by the Minister of Human Resources Development for courses that develop or improve occupational skills. An eligible program has to last at least 3 consecutive weeks. A full-time program requires students to spend at least 10 hours a week on courses or work in the program. A part-time program requires students to spend at least 12 hours in a calendar month on courses in the program.

Other situations

When completing the return of a supporting person (of an eligible child) who died in 2001, claim eligible child care expenses that were paid while that person was living with the child as if he or she was the only supporting person. However, if there was another supporting person, that person is also considered the only supporting person of the eligible child, and can claim eligible child care expenses paid while living with the child, as long as the expenses were not claimed on the return of another person.

If you lived outside Canada for part or all of 2001, and we consider you to be a factual or deemed resident of Canada, you can claim child care expenses that you paid to a non-resident person for services provided outside Canada. We explain these terms under "Which tax and benefit package should you use?" on page 7 of the General Income Tax and Benefit Guide. For information on other circumstances in which you can claim child care expenses paid for services provided outside Canada (such as commuters to the United States), please contact us.

If you immigrated to, or emigrated from, Canada in 2001, you can claim child care expenses for the period you were in Canada, as long as you otherwise qualify.
