

CANADIAN FORCES BASE SUFFIELD NATIONAL WILDLIFE AREA

Canadian Forces Base Suffield National Wildlife Area

What makes CFB Suffield NWA so special?

Canadian Forces Base (CFB) Suffield National Wildlife Area (NWA) was established in 2003 to protect and conserve native prairie grasslands and wildlife, including many species at risk. Located within CFB Suffield in southeastern Alberta, its 458 square kilometres encompass a diversity of habitats that support a wide range of wildlife species, many of which have declined or disappeared elsewhere across the prairies in Canada. CFB Suffield is

- home to more than 1100 species, 20 of which are listed as species at risk in Canada;
- vital habitat for emblematic prairie species such as the Burrowing Owl, Ferruginous Hawk and Sprague's Pipit;
- a refuge for rare habitat specialists such as Small-flowered Sand-verbena and Ord's Kangaroo Rat;

- grazed by large mammals such as native Pronghorn, Mule Deer and introduced Elk.

CFB Suffield NWA provides a rare opportunity to protect populations of unique and endangered prairie wildlife at a scale large enough to promote their recovery and ongoing persistence.

What are Environment Canada Protected Areas?

Environment Canada establishes marine and terrestrial NWAs for the purposes of conservation, research and interpretation. NWAs are established to protect migratory birds, species at risk, and other wildlife and their habitats. NWAs are established under the authority of the Canada Wildlife Act and are, first and foremost, places for wildlife. Migratory Bird Sanctuaries (MBSs) are established under the authority of the Migratory Birds Convention Act 1994, and provide a refuge for migratory birds in marine and terrestrial environments. The current Protected Areas Network consists of 54 NWAs and 92 MBSs comprising more than 12 million hectares across Canada.

What can I do at CFB Suffield NWA?

CFB Suffield NWA is managed by the Department of National Defence as part of CFB Suffield. Public access is strictly prohibited, although some research and habitat management activities may be permitted. No hunting is permitted for public safety reasons. For more information on access and permitting for CFB Suffield NWA, contact the CFB Suffield NWA Coordinator or the Environment Canada regional office. For a complete list of NWAs, including those you can visit, please see the Environment Canada website.
