- Find a school that's right for you and apply
- Apply for a study permit as soon as possible
- Work while you study

Help your spouse/partner work while you study

- Get a post-graduation work permit (PGWP)

With a PGWP, you can work for up to three years in Canada for almost any employer

- Get another type of work permit if you are not eligible for PGWP

Explore other types of work permits you could be eligible for

Help your spouse/partner keep working while you work

- With Canadian educational credentials and work experience, you're a great candidate to apply to stay permanently

Check out your options:

- EE Express Entry
- PNP Provincial Nominee Program
- AIP Atlantic Immigration Pilot
- RNIP Rural and Northern Immigration Pilot

- The time you spend in Canada as a student or temporary worker counts towards eventually applying to be a Canadian citizen
