ENF 18 Human or international rights violations

Contents
1 What this chapter is about .......................................................... 3
2 Canada’s Crimes Against Humanity and War Crimes Program objectives .............................................. 3
  2.1 Remedies ............................................................................ 3
3 Related Legislation ..................................................................... 4
  3.1 The Crimes Against Humanity and War Crimes Act ........................................................................ 4
  3.2 The Extradition Act ............................................................... 4
  3.3 The Immigration and Refugee Protection Act .................................................................................. 5
  3.4 The Citizenship Act ................................................................ 6
4 Forms ......................................................................................... 6
5 Instruments and delegations ...................................................... 6
6 Definitions .................................................................................. 7
  6.1 Differences between genocide and a crime against humanity ......................................................... 8
  6.2 Differences between a war crime and a crime against humanity .................................................... 8
  6.3 Differences between a crime against humanity, war crime and a terrorist act: .................................. 9
7 Program Objectives – CBSA ....................................................... 9
8 Procedure: Establishing inadmissibility under A35(1)(a) of the Immigration and Refugee Protection Act or exclusion under 1F(a) of the United Nations Refugee Agency’s Convention and Protocol relating to the status of refugees .................................................. 10
  8.1 Establishing complicity ............................................................ 10
  8.2 The contribution-based test ................................................... 10
  8.3 6 Factors – Contribution-based test for establishing complicity ..................................................... 11
  8.4 Establishing complicity—brutal (limited purpose) organizations .................................................... 12
  8.5 Other forms of complicity ........................................................ 12
  8.6 Defences .............................................................................. 13
  8.7 Cases involving prior exclusion by the Refugee Protection Division (RPD) ...................................... 16
9 Procedure: Establishing inadmissibility under A35(1)(b) ........................................................................ 16
  9.1 Designation of regimes ............................................................ 17
  9.2 Designated regimes pursuant to Section A35(1)(b) ................................................................. 17
  9.3 Requirements to establish inadmissibility ..................................................................................... 17
  9.4 Opportunity for person to be heard ............................................................................................. 19
  9.5 Consultation with CBSA HQ ................................................... 19
10 Procedure: How to assess A35 or 1F(a) cases ................................................................................... 19
  10.1 Determining the general profile ................................................................................................. 19
  10.2 Security vetting of Temporary and Permanent Resident visa applicants ....................................... 20
11 Inadmissibility under paragraphs A35(1)(c), A35(1)(d) and A35(1)(e) .................................................. 20
  11.1 A35(1)(c) Restricted entry / Imposed sanctions on a country ................................................... 20
  11.2 Inadmissibility under paragraphs A35(1)(d) and A35(1)(e) .................................................... 20
12 Roles and responsibilities .......................................................... 22
  12.1 National Security Screening Division (NSSD) ......................................................................... 22
  12.2 Intelligence Collection, Analysis and Production (ICAP) .......................................................... 22
  12.3 Immigration Enforcement Division .......................................................................................... 23
  12.4 Case Review Unit (CRU) ....................................................................................................... 23
Appendix A - War crimes amendments to the Immigration Act and Regulations ....................................... 24
Appendix B – Crimes Against Humanity Act and War Crimes Act .......................................................... 25
Appendix C - Rome Statute of the International Criminal Court ........................................................... 26
  (a) Article 6—Genocide ......................................................................................... 26
  (b) Article 7—Crimes against humanity ............................................................... 26
  (c) Article 8—War crimes ....................................................................................... 27
ENF 18 Human or international rights violations

Updates to chapter

Listing by date:

Date: 2020-06-03

Title change of manual chapter: previous title of “War crimes and crimes against humanity” changed to “Human or international rights violations”

List of designated regimes in section 9.2 amended to specify end-date for the interim government in Rwanda as July 18, 1994 in order to reflect the change in regime which took place on July 19th, 1994.

Changes made to section 8.6 to reflect Minister's policy position on defence of duress.

Section 11: content added to reflect legislative changes and addition of new inadmissibilities under paragraphs 35(1)(c), 35(1)(d) and 35(1)(e) of the IRPA.

Title of Canada’s War Crimes Program amended to Canada’s Crimes Against Humanity and War Crimes Program (CAHWC).

Date: 2016-12-01

Changes were made to ENF 18 to reflect the contribution test for complicity
Substantive and minor changes as well as clarifications have been provided throughout the chapter

Date: 2005-12-15

Changes were made to ENF 18 to reflect the IRCC and CBSA policy and service delivery roles.

Appendix E has been removed and a web site address has been given to direct the reader to the list of designated regimes online. Appendix F was renamed accordingly.

Date: 2004-01-23

A bullet was added to Appendix E of chapter ENF 18 and now reads as follows:

ENF 18 Human or international rights violations

1 What this chapter is about

This Chapter describes Canada’s Crimes Against Humanity and War Crimes (CAHWC) Program and the CBSA’s role in the Program. The chapter further outlines the inadmissibility provisions under section 35 of the Immigration and Refugee Protection Act (IRPA) for human or international rights violations and provides guidance on how to determine if persons are inadmissible to Canada for alleged involvement in war crimes, crimes against humanity and/or genocide.

2 Canada’s Crimes Against Humanity and War Crimes Program objectives

The goal of Canada’s CAHWC Program is to deny safe haven in Canada to war criminals and persons believed to have committed or been complicit in these crimes.

The Program is delivered as a partnership between the Canada Border Services Agency (CBSA), Immigration, Refugees and Citizenship Canada (IRCC), Department of Justice (Justice) and the Royal Canadian Mounted Police (RCMP).

The CBSA administers and enforces the IRPA and the Immigration and Refugee Protection Regulations (IRPR) in denying inadmissible persons access to Canada at ports of entry, excluding claimants from refugee protection, and removing inadmissible and excluded persons from Canada.

IRCC applies the IRPA and IRPR when determining the admissibility of temporary and permanent residents to Canada. IRCC also conducts the initial screening as part of the visa assessment process to determine if there are reasonable grounds to believe that the applicant has committed or was complicit in the commission of war crimes, crimes against humanity and/or genocide. IRCC, in coordination with Justice are responsible for citizenship revocation of individuals who have committed or were complicit in war crimes, crimes against humanity and/or genocide.

Under the Extradition Act legislation, Justice leads on cases involving extradition to foreign states or surrender to international tribunals. Justice also works with the Public Prosecution Service of Canada (PPSC) in criminal proceedings led by the PPSC. Criminal proceedings are, in turn, based on investigations conducted by the RCMP under the Crimes Against Humanity and War Crimes Act.

2.1 Remedies

Canada’s CAHWC Program has several remedies available to deal with alleged war criminals and individuals suspected of involvement in crimes against humanity and/or genocide:

• designation of governments and regimes considered to have engaged in gross human rights violations under A35(1)(b) of the Immigration and Refugee Protection Act;
• denial of visas to persons outside of Canada under the Immigration and Refugee Protection Act;
• exclusion from refugee protection of the 1951 United Nations Convention Relating to the Status of Refugees;
• admissibility hearing and removal from Canada under the Immigration and Refugee Protection Act;
• prosecution in Canada under the Crimes Against Humanity and War Crimes Act;
• revocation of citizenship under the Citizenship Act;
• extradition upon request of a foreign government under Canada’s Extradition Act; and,
ENF 18 Human or international rights violations

- surrender to an international tribunal (upon request) under Canada's Extradition Act.

These remedies are available to the Government of Canada through its various bodies and not specifically the CBSA. Each department or agency is mandated under different legislation further described below.

3 Related Legislation

The following is the list of applicable legislation and government of Canada departments mandated with the enforcement against individuals who have committed or were complicit in the commission of war crimes, crimes against humanity and/or genocide. A description of the relevant provisions is also included.

3.1 The Crimes Against Humanity and War Crimes Act

Mandate: Justice and the RCMP

This Act:

- provides for the prosecution of any individual present in Canada for any offence stated in the Act regardless of where the offence occurred;

  - organizes offences of genocide, crimes against humanity, war crimes, and breach of responsibility by military commanders and civilian superiors;

  - creates offences to protect the administration of justice at the International Criminal Court (ICC) including the safety of judges and witnesses;

  - recognizes the need to provide restitution to victims of offences; and

  - provides a mechanism to do so.

3.2 The Extradition Act

Mandate: Justice and the RCMP

This Act:

- provides Canada with the legal basis on which to extradite persons located in Canada, who are sought for extradition by one of Canada's "extradition partners".

Extradition partners are:

- countries with which Canada has an extradition agreement (bilateral treaties or multilateral conventions);

- countries with which Canada has entered into a case-specific agreement; or

- countries or international courts whose names appear in the schedule to the Extradition Act.
ENF 18 Human or international rights violations

Justice handles all of the extradition cases under their mandate. The extradition process is provided for reference only; this is not an avenue for the CBSA to pursue.

3.3 The Immigration and Refugee Protection Act

Mandate: CBSA and IRCC

This Act:

- provides for refusal of visas and Temporary and Permanent Resident status of persons found inadmissible abroad, including those inadmissible for war crimes, crimes against humanity and/or genocide;

- provides for the legal authority to investigate an allegation, review and report the allegation and issue a removal order when the allegation is founded against individuals seeking entry or already in Canada. Provides the opportunity for the Minister to grant relief for those found inadmissible under A35(1)(b);

- provides for the exclusion from the refugee determination process of persons who are inadmissible under A35, including those involved in war crimes, crimes against humanity and/or genocide;

- provides for the designation of regimes considered to have engaged in gross human rights violations, war crimes or crimes against humanity and/or genocide; and,

- limits appeal rights of persons involved in war crimes, crimes against humanity and/or genocide.

- allows for the removal of A35 inadmissible persons to countries, even when there is a temporary stay of removal (TSR) and allows Canada to remove to a third country willing to take the individual even when it is not their former country of permanent residence/citizenship or a country from which the entered Canada.

Table: Sections of the IRPA and the IRPR applying to human or international rights violations

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Provision</th>
<th>Act and Regulations</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Human or international rights violations</td>
<td>A35</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Committing an act outside Canada that constitutes a Crime Against Humanity or War Crimes Act;</td>
<td>A35(1)(a)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Prescribed senior official</td>
<td>A35(1)(b)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Restricted entry/imposed sanctions on a country</td>
<td>A35(1)(c)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Subject of order under Special Economic Measures Act (SEMA)</td>
<td>A35(1)(d)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Listed under Justice for Victims of Corrupt Foreign Officials Act (Sergei Magnitsky Law)</td>
<td>A35(1)(e)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ministerial relief</td>
<td>A42.1</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Exception to non-refoulement</td>
<td>A115(2)(b)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Prescribed conclusive findings of fact for determining inadmissibility under A35(1)(a)</td>
<td>R15</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Prescribed conclusive findings of fact for determining inadmissibility under A35(1)(b)</td>
<td>R16</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
ENF 18 Human or international rights violations

Exclusion from the Principle of Non-refoulement (A115(2)(b))

In most cases Convention refugees in Canada are protected from removal pursuant to 115(2)(a) of the IRPA. An exception may, however, be made when a Convention refugee has been found inadmissible to Canada for the commission of human rights violations and a Minister's Delegate at IRCC is of the opinion that either the danger the person presents to the security of Canada or the nature and severity of their actions is greater than the risk they would face upon removal.

If an officer identifies a case where they feel it may be appropriate to seek an opinion under A115(2)(b), they should consult the manual ENF 28 and contact the CBSA’s Danger Assessment Section.

3.4 The Citizenship Act

Mandate: IRCC and the RCMP

This Act:

- provides for the not granting of citizenship for security or criminality cases and also allows for the revocation of citizenship obtained by fraud or misrepresentation for a number of reasons including misrepresentation concerning war crimes, crimes against humanity and/or genocide.

- provides that citizenship shall not be granted while the person is under investigation by the Minister of Justice, the RCMP or the Canadian Security Intelligence Service (CSIS) for, or is charged with, on trial for, subject to or a party to an appeal relating to, an offence under any of sections 4 to 7 of the Crimes Against Humanity and War Crimes Act.

4 Forms

Nil.

5 Instruments and delegations

A4 sets out which Minister is responsible for the administration of the IRPA. The Minister of Citizenship and Immigration [also known as Immigration, Refugees and Citizenship Canada (IRCC)] and the Minister of Public Safety and Emergency Preparedness (PS) are jointly responsible for the administration and enforcement of the IRPA, however there are some differences. The IRCC Minister is responsible for the overall administration of the IRPA, unless otherwise specified. The Minister of PS has the primary responsibility for the administration of the IRPA as it relates to the following:

- port of entry examinations;
- enforcement of the IRPA including arrest, detention and removal;
- establishment of policies respecting the enforcement of the IRPA and inadmissibility under A34/37; and
- declarations referred to under A42.1 (Ministerial Relief provision)

Pursuant to A6(1), the responsible Minister has the authority to designate any persons or classes of persons as officers to carry out any purpose of any provision of the IRPA, and to specify the powers and duties of the officers so designated. This is referred to as the designation of authority. In addition, A6(2) authorizes that anything that may be done by the Minister under the Act may be done by a person that the Minister authorizes in writing. This is referred to as delegation of authority.
ENF 18 Human or international rights violations

Each Minister who has responsibilities under the IRPA has written an instrument of delegation and designation that is periodically updated. The Delegation of Authority and Designations of Officers (D & D) instruments stipulate who has the authority to perform specific immigration-related functions. CBSA and IRCC personnel are designated by position to perform all delegated or designated authorities. It is to be noted that the IRPA D & D instruments have a hierarchical link which means only the lowest level of authority is included in the D & D instruments as every position above this one (with a direct hierarchical link) has the same authority to perform specific immigration-related functions.

CBSA and IRCC officers should always review both the CBSA and the IRCC D & D instruments as they have authorities delegated and designated under both instruments, which can be found on the IL 3-Designation of Officers and Delegation of Authority.

It is important to note that while IRCC officers have been designated the authority to deny an application made under the IRPA based on inadmissibility under A34 (security), A35 (violating human or international rights) and A37 (organized criminality), only CBSA officers may prepare and review A44(1) reports for these inadmissibilities.

A35(1)(b) of the IRPA stipulates that the Minister (Public Safety) may designate a regime. This authority is not delegated to any other person.

6 Definitions

As defined in the Crimes Against Humanity and War Crimes Act:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>War Crime</th>
<th>An act or omission committed during an armed conflict that, at the time and in the place of its commission, constitutes a war crime according to customary international law or conventional international law applicable to armed conflicts, whether or not it constitutes a contravention of the law in force at the time and in the place of its commission.</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Crimes against humanity</td>
<td>Means murder, extermination, enslavement, deportation, imprisonment, torture, sexual violence, persecution or any other inhumane act or omission that is committed against any civilian population or any identifiable group and that, at the time and in the place of its commission, constitutes a crime against humanity according to customary international law or conventional international law or by virtue of its being criminal according to the general principles of law recognized by the community of nations, whether or not it constitutes a contravention of the law in force at the time and in the place of its commission.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Genocide</td>
<td>Means an act or omission committed with intent to destroy, in whole or in part, an identifiable group of persons, as such, that, at the time and in the place of its commission, constitutes genocide according to customary international law or conventional international law or by virtue of its being criminal according to the general principles of law recognized by the community of nations, whether or not it constitutes a contravention of the law in force at the time and in the place of its commission.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
6.1 Differences between genocide and a crime against humanity

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Genocide</th>
<th>Crime against humanity</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>An act committed to destroy a group.</td>
<td>An act committed as part of a widespread or systematic attack.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The perpetrator intended to destroy a group.</td>
<td>The perpetrator was aware of the widespread or systematic attack and intended to commit the criminal conduct.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The circle of victims, as defined by the Rome Statute, is relatively small and includes the following groups defined by: nationality, ethnicity, race and religion. In addition, the following distinction was added in Canada: any other identifiable group.</td>
<td>The circle of victims, as defined by the Rome Statute, is relatively small and includes the following groups defined by: nationality, ethnicity, race and religion. In addition, the following distinction was added in Canada: any other identifiable group.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Genocide always falls within the broader category of crimes against humanity.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

6.2 Differences between a war crime and a crime against humanity

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>War Crime</th>
<th>Crime against humanity</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Can be limited to a single criminal act.</td>
<td>A single criminal act can only be considered a crime against humanity if it is shown that this one act was the result of the implementation of a widespread or systematic policy (Rome Statute of the International Criminal Court art. 7).</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Can only occur when a certain threshold of intensity is reached between parties in the conflict (Rome Statute of the International Criminal Court art. 8, 2(d)).</td>
<td>Can occur in any setting: during international war, civil war, and in times of peace.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>For example, police officers conducting themselves in a violent manner during riots would not necessarily constitute a war crime, but could be a crime against humanity.</td>
<td>For example, a particular atrocity such as the killing of a civilian during a civil war can be both a war crime and a crime against humanity.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Can be a crime against property.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
6.3 Differences between a crime against humanity, war crime and a terrorist act:

A terrorist act generally has a wider application than a war crime, a crime against humanity and/or genocide because:

- it is different than a crime against humanity in that it can be committed against both persons and property;
- it can be an isolated incident — it does not have to be committed in a widespread or systematic manner;
- it can be committed both in times of war and peace;

Criminal conduct pertaining to terrorist acts tends to be limited to very serious acts against persons and property (see section 83.01(1)(b)(ii) of the Criminal Code Criminal Code). Terrorist acts also have been committed to achieve a particular purpose and with a specific intention (see section 83.01(1)(b)(i) and 83.01(1)(b)(ii) of the Criminal Code of Canada).

This wider application is also reflected in section 34 of the IRPA, which makes any person who is or was a member of a terrorist organization inadmissible.

An officer may have an applicant who fits the description of all three crimes. An example scenario would be:

- that a person was found to be a member of a group;
- that the group the person belonged to conducted a bombing campaign;
- that the incident occurred during a civil war.

In this scenario it would be preferable to find such a person described in A34(1)(f) rather than in A35(1)(a). The concept of membership to apply A35(1)(a) would not be sufficient as a result of the decision by the Supreme Court of Canada in Rachidi Ekanza Ezokola v Minister of Citizenship and Immigration (2013) SCC40 (i.e. it would need to be proven that the person made a voluntary, knowing and significant contribution to the organization’s crime or criminal purpose) further described in Section 8 of this chapter.

Note: Refer to Appendix C which lists articles 6, 7 and 8 of the Rome Statute of the International Criminal Court. These articles provide further clarification and examples of what constitutes war crimes, crimes against humanity and/or genocide.

7 Program Objectives – CBSA

Persons who have committed or including those who are complicit in the commission of a war crime, a crime against humanity, genocide or any other reprehensible act, regardless of when or where these crimes occurred, are not welcome in Canada.

A four-pronged approach is taken when dealing with modern-day war criminals:

- refusing their overseas applications as permanent residents, refugees, or temporary residents;
- denying their entry to Canada at ports of entry;
- excluding them from the refugee determination process in Canada; and,
- finding them inadmissible and removing them from Canada.
ENF 18 Human or international rights violations

8 Procedure: Establishing inadmissibility under A35(1)(a) of the Immigration and Refugee Protection Act or exclusion under 1F(a) of the United Nations Refugee Agency’s Convention and Protocol relating to the status of refugees.

A35(1)(a) under the Immigration and Refugee Protection Act reads as follows:

35. (1) A permanent resident or a foreign national is inadmissible on grounds of violating human rights or international rights for:

(a) committing an act outside Canada that constitutes an offence referred to in sections 4 to 7 of the Crimes Against Humanity and War Crimes Act;

Article 1F(a) of the United Nations Refugee Agency’s Convention and Protocol relating to the status of refugees reads as follows:

1F The provisions of this Convention shall not apply to any person with respect to whom there are serious reasons for considering that:

(a) he has committed a crime against peace, a war crime, or a crime against humanity as defined in the international instruments drawn up to make provision in respect of such crimes

This includes the following:

- individuals who personally commit an offence;
- individuals who attempt to commit an offence;
- individuals who aid and abet, encourage, or are involved in the planning of an offence;
- individuals who occupy a position of command or superior responsibility with regards to those who committed the offense;
- individuals who are complicit when an offence is committed.

8.1 Establishing complicity

The Supreme Court of Canada (SCC) decision in the matter of Rachidi Ekanza Ezokola v Minister of Citizenship and Immigration (2013) changed how complicity in war crimes, crimes against humanity and/or genocide is to be assessed. The court introduced the contribution-based test as the applicable legal test to be applied by the Immigration Refugee Board (IRB) or immigration officers in-Canada or overseas. Eliminated components of the United Nations Refugee Agency’s Convention and Protocol relating to the status of refugees 1F(a) jurisprudence, which are also applicable to IRPA A35(1)(a) analysis, are:

- the elimination of complicity by mere association; and,
- the elimination of the presumption that mere membership in an organization with a limited brutal purpose is sufficient for an individual to be excluded from refugee protection or found inadmissible under A35(1)(a).

8.2 The contribution-based test

The key components of the contribution-based test jurisprudence are:
• Voluntary contribution to the group’s crime or criminal purpose:

Decision makers are to consider the method of recruitment by the organization and any safe and early opportunity the person has had to disassociate from the organization. The voluntariness requirement captures the defense of duress. The contribution to the crime or criminal purpose must be voluntarily made; it cannot be made under duress.

• Significant contribution to the group’s crime or criminal purpose:

The mere association factor has now been replaced with a culpable complicity factor when a person makes a significant contribution to the crime or criminal purpose of a group. The degree of contribution must be carefully assessed to prevent an unreasonable extension of criminal participation in international criminal law.

• Knowing contribution to the group’s crime or criminal purpose:

The person must be aware of the group’s crime or criminal purpose and aware that his or her conduct will assist in the furtherance of the crime or criminal purpose.

8.3 6 Factors – Contribution-based test for establishing complicity:

To determine whether a person’s conduct meets the test for complicity, the following 6 factors should be considered in the decision maker’s analysis:

- The size and nature of the organization, including whether the organization was one with a brutal, limited purpose;
- The part of the organization with which the person was most directly concerned:

Decision makers should be aware that persons may not have been affiliated with all parts of the organization and could have been excluded from affiliating with the part that was involved in the crime or criminal purpose. The decision maker should drill down as far as possible in the organization so as to more properly define the group to which the person is said to belong, especially with organizations that are hybrid or multi-faceted.

- The person’s duties and activities within the organization:

This factor is significant because it goes to the heart of a person’s day-to-day participation. The decision maker should look at the person’s day-to-day participation in regards to the duties and activities and consider the link between these and the crimes and criminal purpose of the organization.

- The person’s position or rank in the organization;
- The length of time the person was in the organization, particularly after acquiring knowledge of the group’s crime or criminal purpose; and,
- The method by which the person was recruited and the person’s opportunity to leave the organization,

These factors are not exhaustive and are not given the same weight in all cases. The focus must remain on the person’s contribution to the crime or criminal purpose and the analysis. The weight of each factor will depend on the facts and context of each case.
8.4 Establishing complicity—brutal (limited purpose) organizations

In the decision of Rachidi Ekanza Ezokola v Minister of Citizenship and Immigration (2013) SCC40, the Supreme Court of Canada has stated that when looking at establishing complicity, the contribution-based test should be applied.

A first step is to look at the size and nature of the organization. If the main purpose of the organization is the involvement in war crimes, crimes against humanity and/or genocide, the factor with respect to such an organization may weigh more heavily than some of the other factors set out above. A characterization of an organization as brutal only has an effect in relation to the other factors in the contribution-based test but by itself can never lead to complicity. The Supreme Court stated in the Ezokola decision of that “In contrast, where the group is identified as one with a limited and brutal purpose it will be easier to establish complicity. In such circumstances, a decision maker may more readily infer that the accused had knowledge of the group’s criminal purpose and that his conduct contributed to that purpose.”

8.5 Other forms of complicity

While the new contribution-based test for complicity set out in Ezokola replaces the former “personal and knowing participation test”, it also allows for the continued and direct application of international criminal law including modes of partial liability for the commission of international crimes, such as aiding and abetting based on article 25 of the Rome Statute, and also command or superior responsibility based on article 28 of the Rome Statute.

The Canadian courts have determined that the following activities constitute aiding and abetting (as 1 form of complicity):

- handing over people to organizations (brutal or non-brutal) with the knowledge that these people would come to harm;
- providing information to organizations on individuals which result in harm to these individuals;
- providing support functions, such as being an intelligence officer, a driver or a bodyguard to members of the organization;
- assisting in increasing the effectiveness of a limited brutal purpose organization, for example, by being a policeman in charge of political prisoners at a military hospital or being in charge of legal training with a police force.

If the above examples of aiding and abetting do not fit the situation at hand, international criminal law can be helpful in this regard. The aider and abettor carries out acts specifically directed to assist, encourage or lend moral support to the perpetration of a certain specific crime (murder, extermination, rape, torture, wanton destruction of civilian property, etc.), and this support has a substantial effect upon the perpetration of the crime. (Tadić (IT-94-1-A), Appeals Chamber, 15 July 1999 at para. 229.)

While the concepts of command responsibility and superior responsibility have been introduced into Canadian criminal law and are now part of the Crimes Against Humanity and War Crimes Act (which is in turn based on article 28 of the Rome Statute) there has been no jurisprudence in Canada as of yet. Command responsibility applies to military hierarchies and superior responsibility applies to civilian organizations.

However, international criminal law has been instrumental in providing clarifications for its various elements. For example, a superior will be subject to individual criminal liability if the following elements can be demonstrated: a superior-subordinate relationship; the superior knew or had reason to know that a criminal act was about to be, was being or had been committed (the requisite mens rea); and a failure to take necessary and reasonable measures to prevent or punish the conduct in question.

8.6 Defences

The burden of proof with respect to defences lies with the person concerned, i.e. it has to be raised and proven by that person. Two common defences in immigration/refugee law are superior orders and duress.

Superior Orders:

A common defence of a person who committed a war crime, genocide, or a crime against humanity is based on the concept of superior orders; i.e., the position held required the individual to follow orders from the government or a superior officer. Although this defence may be used in arguing for a lighter sentence in a criminal prosecution, it is not relevant for the purposes of the IRPA and cannot overcome inadmissibility under A35(1)(a) or 1F(a) exclusion, except if the person concerned can show that the order followed was not manifestly unlawful; a difficult test to meet.

Duress:

The Ministers’ policy position regarding the appropriate test for the defence of duress, when it is raised in the context of assessments under A35(1)(a) or 1F(a) exclusion under A98, is one which adopts a harmonized approach based on Canadian criminal law, Canadian immigration law and international criminal law.

1. When assessing the defence of duress for inadmissibility under paragraph 35(1)(a) of the IRPA or for a 1F(a) exclusion under section 98 of the IRPA, we must rely on international criminal law. This was articulated by the Federal Court of Appeal in Ramirez v. Canada (Minister of Employment and Immigration), 1992 CanLII 8540 (FCA).
2. However, the defence of duress under international criminal law has changed since Ramirez was rendered. The current state of the test is codified in article 31(1)(d) of the Rome Statute of the International Criminal Court. The test for duress set out in article 31(1)(d) of the Rome Statute therefore applies.
3. The Canadian criminal law test for the defence of duress set out by the Supreme Court of Canada in R v. Ryan, 2013 SCC 3 should only be relied upon as an interpretive aid (see “For cross-reference purposes only: Test under Ryan” below).

The following is a summary of the elements of the test to be applied:

1. There must be a threat of imminent death or of continuing or imminent serious bodily harm;
2. Such threat is required to be made by other persons or constituted by other circumstances beyond the control of the person concerned;
3. The threat must be directed against the person concerned or some other person;
4. The person concerned must act necessarily and reasonably to avoid this threat;
5. In so acting the person concerned does not intend to cause a greater harm than the one sought to be avoided.

Details of Minister’s harmonized interpretation:

The Minister’s position is that the elements of the international criminal law test for the defence of duress are in harmony with the elements found in the domestic criminal law test.
In accordance with the Minister’s interpretation, both tests recognize that responsibility for the commission of a crime disappears when:

- the "accused person" (the person who is alleged to have committed the crime) committed the crime in circumstances which removed the "accused's" ability to exercise free will (i.e., the act was no longer voluntary / the "accused" was compelled to act), because of
  - a threat of death or serious bodily harm to the "accused" or another person which outweighed the harm which the "accused" was being forced to inflict.

Both tests consist of stringent elements which must be met in order for the defence to apply. Those elements are harmonized as follows:

1. There must have been a "threat of death or serious bodily harm";
   i. the threat must have been made by other persons or constituted by other circumstances beyond the control of the "accused";
   ii. a merely abstract danger or simply an elevated probability that a dangerous situation might occur will not suffice;
   iii. the threat must have been objectively present and not merely exist in the perpetrator's mind (the "accused" must reasonably have believed that the threat would be realized);
   iv. the threat must have been directed against the "accused" or some other person.

2. There must have been a "close temporal connection" between the threat and the harm threatened;
   i. a "close temporal connection" is sufficient to show that the threat was not too far removed in time or too vague in terms of its timing;
   ii. a "close temporal connection" supports a finding that it is reasonable to believe that the degree of pressure placed on the "accused" was sufficient for the "accused" to lose the ability to act freely (the "accused" therefore acted in an involuntary manner);
   iii. "close temporal connection" does not require that the harm threatened occurred immediately (threats of future harm may be considered). Future harm is evaluated in the context of whether there still remained a sufficiently close temporal connection to the threat;
   iv. "imminent" under the Rome Statute is understood to mean "close temporal connection" as this phrase is used by the SCC in Ryan.

3. There must have been a "close temporal connection" between the threat and the act of the "accused" in order to determine whether there was any legal way of averting the act;
   i. a "close temporal connection" is sufficient to show that the threat was not too far removed in time or too vague in terms of its timing;
   ii. a "close temporal connection" supports a finding that it is reasonable to believe that the degree of pressure placed on the "accused" was sufficient for the "accused" to lose the ability to act freely (to have acted in an involuntary manner);
   iii. "imminent" under the Rome Statute is understood to mean "close temporal connection" as this phrase is used by the SCC in Ryan.

4. There must have been no legal way of averting the act based on a modified objective standard (this reflects both the position in Ryan and the Rome Statute's requirement to have acted necessarily and reasonably to avoid the threat)
   i. a threat results in duress only if it is not otherwise avoidable (i.e., if a reasonable person in comparable circumstances would not have submitted and would not have been driven to the relevant criminal conduct; no other available alternative course of evasive action that could reasonably have been expected to be taken; could not have fairly been expected to withstand or assume the risk);
   ii. acting necessarily and reasonably to avoid a threat does not require special valour, prowess or heroism which, by definition, go beyond the call of a reasonable person;
   iii. part of this analysis includes an evaluation of whether there was a safe avenue of escape;
iv. part of this analysis includes an evaluation of whether the predicament in which the "accused" finds himself or herself was of his or her own making or consistent with his or her own will (e.g., where the "accused" becomes (or remains) a party to an association in which he or she knowingly accepted a risk that, as a result of such association, he or she could be compelled to commit such a crime). Voluntarily associating oneself (joining or remaining associated) with such knowledge would not meet the requirement to act necessarily and reasonably;

v. the "modified objective standard" refers to assessing how a reasonable person in the same situation as the "accused" and with the same personal circumstances and experiences as the "accused" would have acted (e.g., concluding whether or not there was no legal way of averting the act, such as a safe avenue of escape).

5. There must have been a measure of proportionality between the harm threatened and the harm which the "accused" inflicted on the victim(s). The harm threatened must outweigh the harm inflicted. This should be based on a modified objective standard;
   i. part of this analysis includes an evaluation of the severity of the bodily harm that was threatened;
   ii. the "modified objective standard" refers to assessing how a reasonable person in the same situation as the "accused" and with the same personal circumstances and experiences as the "accused" would have acted (e.g., concluding whether or not the harm being threatened outweighed the harm inflicted on the victim(s)).

For cross-reference purposes only: Test under Ryan

The Supreme Court of Canada in R. v Ryan, 2013 SCC 3 (CanLII), at paragraph 55, set out the test for the defence of duress in Canadian criminal law as follows:

1. an explicit or implicit threat of death or bodily harm proffered against the "accused" or a third person. The threat may be of future harm. Although, traditionally, the degree of bodily harm was characterized as "grievous", the issue of severity is better dealt with at the proportionality stage, which acts as the threshold for the appropriate degree of bodily harm;
2. the "accused" reasonably believed that the threat would be carried out;
3. the non-existence of a safe avenue of escape, evaluated on a modified objective standard;
4. a close temporal connection between the threat and the harm threatened;
5. proportionality between the harm threatened and the harm inflicted by the "accused". This is also evaluated on a modified objective standard;
6. the "accused" is not a party to a conspiracy or association whereby the "accused" is subject to compulsion and actually knew that threats and coercion to commit an offence were a possible result of this criminal activity, conspiracy or association.

Application of the defence of duress:

- When an allegation under A35(1)(a) or 1F(a) of the Refugee Convention is made before the Immigration and Refugee Board of Canada (IRB), and the person concerned has raised the issue of duress, it will be an IRB member who decides whether the defence has been sufficiently established.
- When the defence of duress is raised, CBSA Hearings Officers, who represent the relevant Minister before the IRB (either for an allegation under A35(1)(a) or an allegation under 1F(a) of the Refugee Convention), should argue whether the defence of duress has been sufficiently established based on the facts of the case and the Minister's position on the applicable test for the defence of duress.
ENF 18 Human or international rights violations

- In the context of considering writing a report under A44(1) or referring a report under A44(2) for inadmissibility under A35(1)(a), or in the context of a claim being made for refugee protection where article 1F(a) of the Refugee Convention is a possible issue, and when the defence of duress is raised, the officer should record and document any evidence of duress that has been raised. In these circumstances, officers/Minister's Delegates are not to make a decision on whether the defence of duress has been made out.

- In the context of considering an application for permanent residence from inside Canada, Senior Immigration Officers, when deciding whether the person concerned has or has not satisfied the officer that the person concerned is not inadmissible to Canada under A35(1)(a), should record and document any evidence of duress.

- When A35(1)(a) is at issue during the processing of a visa application, and the person concerned has raised the defence of duress, it will be an IRCC Migration Officer who decides whether the defence has been sufficiently established. IRCC Migration Officers should record and document any evidence of duress that has been raised. IRCC Migration Officers should consider the policy position on the appropriate test for the defence of duress as articulated in this manual chapter.

8.7 Cases involving prior exclusion by the Refugee Protection Division (RPD)

Section R15(b) of the Immigration and Refugee Protection Regulations (IRPR) has established that the findings of fact pursuant to section F of Article 1 of the United Nations Refugee Agency's Convention and Protocol relating to the status of refugees [1F(a)] are conclusive during an IRPA A35(1)(a) assessment.

An example would be where the person has previously been in Canada and the officer has evidence that the Refugee Protection Division has excluded the person from refugee determination under 1F(a). In most instances there would be no need to conduct any further investigation to establish further facts under A35(1)(a), as long as the decision maker can demonstrate that these facts would stand up using the new contribution-based test. In most cases, RPD decisions made before the Ezokola decisions can be utilized without having to apply the new complicity test.

There will be situations where the person provides the officer with additional information that was not available at the time of the Refugee Protection Division exclusion. The decision maker must take into account any new and credible evidence regarding the inadmissibility. Any such additional information must be accepted and has to be assessed to demonstrate the contribution-based test.

Both submissions by the applicant as well as the CBSA can be found to be new evidence, provided that they were not before the Refugee Protection Division. Where relevant and credible evidence is brought forward that requires consultation with CBSA HQ, officers may contact the Case Review Unit.

R15 also considers a decision by any international criminal tribunals established by resolution of the Security Council of the United Nations or by the ICC as a conclusive finding of fact for the purposes of inadmissibility under A35(1)(a), as well as a decision by a Canadian court pursuant to the Criminal Code of Canada or the Crimes against Humanity and War Crimes Act.

For case law on complicity, refer to ENF24 Appendix H.

9 Procedure: Establishing inadmissibility under A35(1)(b)
ENF 18 Human or international rights violations

9.1 Designation of regimes

A person cannot be described in A35(1)(b) unless the government concerned has been designated by the Minister of Public Safety as a regime that has been involved in terrorism, systematic or gross human rights violations, a war crime, crime against humanity or genocide within the meaning of subsections 6(3) to (5) of the Crimes Against Humanity and War Crimes Act.

9.2 Designated regimes pursuant to Section A35(1)(b)

The CBSA, in consultation with Immigration, Refugee, Citizenship Canada’s (IRCC) International Region and Global Affairs Canada (GAC), provides a recommendation to the Ministers that a particular government should be designated. The following are among the factors that will be considered in deciding whether a regime should be designated:

- condemnation by other countries and organizations;

- the overall position of the Canadian government, including whether accepting a refugee claim by a senior member of the government would undermine Canada's strong position on human rights;

- the nature of the human rights violations; and

- immigration concerns such as the number of persons coming from that specific country and whether there might be a concern for the protection of Canadian society.

9.3 Requirements to establish inadmissibility
Persons who are described in A35(1)(b) may be broken down into three categories, each with its own evidentiary requirements, as set out in the following table:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Category</th>
<th>Evidence required</th>
<th>Notes</th>
</tr>
</thead>
</table>
| 1. Persons described in R16(a), R16(b), R16(f) (ambassadors only), and R16(g) | Designation of regime
Proof of position | A person in this group is presumed to be or to have been able to exert significant influence on the exercise of that government's power. This is a non-rebuttable presumption which has been upheld by the Federal Court of Appeal. In other words, the fact that a person is or was an official in this category is determinative of the allegation. Aside from the designation and proof that the person holds or held such a position, no further evidence is required to establish inadmissibility. |
| 2. Persons described in R16(c), R16(d), R16(e), and R16(f) (senior diplomatic officials only) | Designation of regime
Proof of position held
Proof that position is senior (see the note following this table) | In addition to the evidence required, it must be established that the position the person holds or held is a senior one. In order to establish that the person's position was senior, the position should be related to the hierarchy in which the functionary operates. Copies of organization charts can be located from the Europa World Year Book, Encyclopedia of the Third World, Country Reports on Human Rights Practices (U.S. Department of State). If it can be demonstrated that the position is in the top half of the organization, the position can be considered senior. This can be further established by evidence of the responsibilities attached to the position and the type of work actually done or the types of decisions made (if not by the applicant then by holders of similar positions). |
| 3. Persons not described in R16 | Designation of regime
Proof that the person could exercise significant influence or was able to benefit from the position | In addition to the designation of the regime, it must be established that the person, although not holding a formal position, is or was able to exercise significant influence on the actions or policies of the regime or was able to benefit from the position.
A person who assists in either promoting or sustaining a government designated by the Minister can be characterized as having significant influence over its policies or actions.
The concept of significant influence is not limited to persons who made final decisions on behalf of the regime; it also applies to persons who assisted in the formulation of these policies, e.g., by providing advice, as well as persons responsible for carrying them out, as long as the influence or benefit occurred at a high level and not an average situation applicable to large categories of people. If a person conducts activities which directly or indirectly allow the regime to |
enf 18 human or international rights violations

| implement its policies, the test for significant influence is met. The phrase "government power" in R16 is not limited to powers exercised by central agencies or departments but can also refer to entities that exercise power at the local level. Once it is established that the person exerted significant influence or benefited, the extent or degree of this influence or benefit is not relevant to the finding of inadmissibility; however, they are factors that could be considered by the Minister when deciding whether a declaration of relief under A42.1 would not be contrary to the national interest. |

There is no definition of "senior official" in the IRPA but the Federal Court has held on a number of occasions that 'senior' applies to the top 50% of an organization.

9.4 Opportunity for person to be heard

If an officer is reporting the person for an allegation under A35(1)(b), the applicant must be given an opportunity to demonstrate that their position is not senior as described in R16 (category 2) or that they did not or could not exert significant influence on their government's actions, decisions, or policies and did not benefit from their position (category 3). This can be done by mail or by personal interview. In either case, the officer should provide the applicant with copies of all unclassified documents that will be considered in assessing admissibility.

9.5 Consultation with CBSA HQ

Officers should be aware of the sensitive nature of A35(1)(b) and the need for careful and thorough consideration of all relevant information. It is not intended that officers should cast the net so widely that all employees of a designated regime are considered inadmissible.

- Before considering the refusal of an applicant whose position is not listed in R16 or writing an A44 for an allegation of inadmissibility, officers are requested to consult with CBSA Case Management (HQ).

10 Procedure: How to assess A35 or 1F(a) cases

10.1 Determining the general profile

When reviewing an application for entry into Canada or investigating an allegation of inadmissibility for persons in Canada, applicants who are from countries where there is/was war, internal turmoil, genocide, or where human rights abuses are/were widespread and who are one of the following qualify for more in-depth investigation:

- senior government officials, diplomats or employees of the government;

- current and former military, para-military, security, intelligence and police personnel or individuals employed in technical or scientific backgrounds related to chemical or biological weapons;

- close family relatives of heads of government/state;

2020-06-03 19
ENF 18 Human or international rights violations

- persons suspected of being members of an organization that is involved in terrorism or crimes against humanity; or
- members of guerrilla groups.

10.2 Security vetting of Temporary and Permanent Resident visa applicants

IRCC visa officers processing temporary and permanent resident visa applications should be aware that an Immigration Control (IC) manual outlines procedures for security screening.

11 Inadmissibility under paragraphs A35(1)(c), A35(1)(d) and A35(1)(e)

11.1 A35(1)(c) Restricted entry / Imposed sanctions on a country

A person is inadmissible on grounds of violating human or international rights for:

- A35(1)(c) Being a person, other than a permanent resident, whose entry into or stay in Canada is restricted pursuant to a decision, or, resolution, or measure of an international organization of states of which Canada is a member that imposes sanctions on a country against which Canada has imposed or has agreed to impose sanctions in concert with that organization or association.

The officer may obtain evidence for A35(1)(c) by collecting:

- Proof that the person concerned is a citizen of a country against which Canada has imposed or has agreed to impose sanctions;
- Proof of the international organization of states or association of states valid decision, resolution or measure (see also ENF 2, Evaluating Inadmissibility); and
- Other documentary evidence including, but not limited to, media articles, scholarly journals, expert evidence (i.e. evidence from a person who is a specialist in a subject and who may present an “expert” opinion).

The following considerations apply to inadmissibility under A35(1)(c):

- 35(1)(c) only applies to foreign nationals (it does not apply to permanent residents).
- 35(1)(c) may be used to deny entry to foreign nationals who are listed by an organization or association of states.
- Canada must be a member of that organization or association of states.
- The restricted entry must be pursuant to sanctions imposed “on a country”.
- Canada must have agreed to impose sanctions in concert with that organization or association of states. There is no requirement of complicity, intent or purpose.

11.2 Inadmissibility under paragraphs A35(1)(d) and A35(1)(e)

A person is inadmissible on grounds of violating human or international rights for:

- A35(1)(d) Being a person, other than a permanent resident, who is currently the subject of an order or regulation made under section 4 of the Special Economic Measures Act on the grounds that any of the circumstances described in paragraph 4(1.1)(c) or (d) of that Act has occurred.
A35(1)(e) Being a person, other than a permanent resident, who is currently the subject of an order or regulation made under section 4 of the Justice for Victims of Corrupt Foreign Officials Act (Sergei Magnitsky Law).

Bill S-226, created the Justice for Victims of Corrupt Foreign Officials Act (Sergei Magnitsky Law) and made related amendments to the Special Economic Measures Act (SEMA) and the IRPA. The bill was passed and received Royal Assent on October 18, 2017.

Pursuant to Bill S-226, sanctions may be made against foreign nationals who have committed gross violations of internationally recognized human rights or who have committed significant corruption. As such, the Government of Canada will publish, update and maintain comprehensive lists of foreign nationals who are responsible for, or complicit in gross violations of human rights or significant corruption. The names on these lists include foreign nationals who are subject to an order or regulation under the Justice for Victims of Corrupt Foreign Officials Act (Sergei Magnitsky Law) or SEMA.

Justice for Victims of Corrupt Foreign Officials Act (Sergei Magnitsky Law)

The Justice for Victims of Corrupt Foreign Officials Act (Sergei Magnitsky Law) enables the Governor in Council to issue an order or regulation restricting or prohibiting certain activities in relation to a foreign national who is responsible for, or complicit in gross violations of human rights. An order or regulation under this Act may also be made in respect of foreign public officials who are responsible for, or complicit in, acts of significant corruption. The comprehensive list is accessible through the Justice Canada website (https://laws.justice.gc.ca/eng/regulations/SOR-2017-233/page-2.html#docCont).

Special Economic Measures Act

The Special Economic Measures Act (SEMA) came into force in 1992 to permit Canada to impose sanctions against foreign states and their nationals. The Justice for Victims of Corrupt Foreign Officials Act (Sergei Magnitsky Law) amends SEMA by expanding the grounds upon which the Governor in Council may cause to be seized, frozen or sequestrated any property in Canada that is held by or on behalf of a foreign state, any person in that foreign state, or a national of that foreign state who does not ordinarily reside in Canada. When sanctions are imposed under the Act, the names of listed persons are published in a schedule to the relevant regulations.

Procedures for A35(1)(d) and A35(1)(e):

In cases where an individual is listed under the Justice for Victims of Corrupt Foreign Officials (Sergei Magnitsky Law) or the SEMA, a lookout will be created in the Integrated Customs Enforcement System (ICES) and a Secure Tracking System (STS) case will be created by the National Security Screening Division (NSSD). Officers will need to confirm biographic details of the foreign national. Foreign nationals who are confirmed to be positive matches to the list meet the reasonable grounds to believe standards for inadmissibility under A35(1)(d) or A35(1)(e).

Before proceeding with an inadmissibility report or a visa refusal, officers must determine whether:

- the individual is a foreign national; and
- the individual is currently the subject of an order or regulation under section 4 of the SEMA on the grounds described in paragraph 4(1.1)(c) or (d); or under section 4 of the Justice for Victims of Corrupt Foreign Officials Act (Sergei Magnitsky Law).
ENF 18 Human or international rights violations

In the event of a suspected name match, other biographic details (i.e. full name, date of birth, place of birth, and/or citizenship, etc. where available) shall be confirmed against the CBSA master sanctions list.

- At ports of entry, officers may contact the Border Operations Centre (BOC) to assist in determining whether the foreign national is, in fact, a positive match to the CBSA master sanctions list.

- At inland or overseas offices, when encountering a suspected match, officers may send an email during business hours (8am to 4pm EST) to the NSSD’s Security Screening Intelligence Unit’s (SSIU) mailbox at CBSA HQ to initiate the verification process. After business hours, officers are to contact the CBSA’s Border Operations Centre.

Note: Pursuant to A35(2), there is a temporal aspect to inadmissibility under A35(1)(d) and A35(1)(e). Despite section 33 of the IRPA, a person who ceases being the subject of an order or regulation referred to in A35(1)(d) or (e) is no longer inadmissible under that paragraph. In other words, an individual is only inadmissible as long as they are currently listed.

- The details supporting why an individual is, or was, listed are not relevant for determining inadmissibility under A35(1)(d) or A35(1)(e).

- The details for listing the foreign national are not in the possession of the CBSA and therefore the CBSA is not under an obligation to disclose. With respect to determining inadmissibility under A35(1)(d) or A35(1)(e) of the IRPA, the position of CBSA is that the only relevant information is that related to the foreign national’s identity.

- While Ministerial relief under A42.1 is available for inadmissibility under A35(1)(c), it is not available for inadmissibility under A35(1)(d) and/or A35(1)(e).

- Should a delisted foreign national be encountered, the officer must evaluate other inadmissibility grounds under IRPA as outlined in ENF 1 and ENF 2.

12 Roles and responsibilities

12.1 National Security Screening Division (NSSD)

The NSSD is located within the Intelligence and Enforcement Branch at CBSA HQ and is responsible for screening temporary and permanent resident applicants as well as refugee claimants for involvement in organized crime, crimes against humanity, genocide, terrorism, espionage and subversion. The NSSD also develops assessments and provides recommendations on security screening referrals to IRCC offices (both domestically and internationally) and CBSA offices.

12.2 Intelligence Collection, Analysis and Production (ICAP)

The Intelligence Collection, Analysis and Production Division of the Intelligence and Enforcement Branch at CBSA collects, analyses and disseminates actionable intelligence on individuals, organizations and events of security concern. The division conducts trend analyses and produces threat assessments and screening aids on current issues and/or groups including those related to foreign interference, espionage, war crimes, crimes against humanity and genocide.
ENF 18 Human or international rights violations

12.3 Immigration Enforcement Division

The Immigration Enforcement Division of the Intelligence and Enforcement Branch at CBSA HQ, is responsible for:

- coordination of the CBSA program input into Canada’s CAHWC Program administration documents and agreements including the annual reports, performance measurements, evaluations, etc.

- shared responsibility for governance of the program by representing the CBSA at the Program Coordination Operations Committee (PCOC) along with the CBSA’s Case Review section. The unit represents the CBSA and works closely with program partners in Justice, the RCMP and IRCC in policy development and program administration, setting of program priorities, and accountability for program performance including annual reporting, implementation of performance measurements and evaluations.

- updates of the ENF 18 manual relating to Human or international rights violations.

- providing functional direction and program policy development related to assessment of inadmissibility under A35, including Canada’s CAHWC Program.

12.4 Case Review Unit (CRU)

The Case Review Unit is located within the Case Management Directorate as part of the Intelligence and Enforcement Branch at CBSA HQ and is responsible for providing advice to the regions concerning case specific enforcement options. The unit is also responsible for managing, tracking and reporting on high profile cases in consultation with program areas, IRCC and the regions. It works closely with IRCC to resolve inadmissibility issues and responds to information requests on immigration cases from senior management, the Minister’s Office, IRCC and stakeholders. The CBSA’s Case Review Unit is responsible for producing case chronologies; a weekly report on high-profile immigration cases; and management of the “Wanted by the CBSA” program.
Appendix A - War crimes amendments to the Immigration Act and Regulations

April 10, 1978 – The Immigration Act 1976 came into force. The Act marked a significant shift in Canadian immigration policy in limiting the wide discretionary powers of the Minister of Manpower and Immigration.

October 30, 1987 - Bill C-71 created 19(1)(j), a new ground of inadmissibility pertaining specifically to war crimes and crimes against humanity.

January 1, 1989 - Bill C-55 added to the Immigration Act the exclusionary clauses of the 1951 Convention Relating to the Status of Refugees. Article 1F(a) of the Convention excludes protection under the Convention to persons who have committed or are complicit in war crimes or crimes against humanity.

February 1, 1993 - Bill C-86 created 19(1)(l), a new ground of inadmissibility pertaining to individuals who are or were senior members of regimes designated by the Minister as having committed gross human rights violations or war crimes.

July 10, 1995 - Bill C-44 enabled senior immigration officers to render ineligible decisions at any stage of the refugee determination process. This included the authority to declare a positive refugee decision null and void if it was determined that the original decision on eligibility was based on misrepresentation.

May 1, 1997 - Amendments to the Post Determination Refugee Claimants in Canada Class (PDRCC) and Deferred Removal Orders Class (DROC) Regulations restricted persons excluded under Article 1F(a) of the Convention from accessing these reviews.

June 17, 1999 - Bill C-40 introduced changes to the Immigration Act concurrent with the proclamation of the new Extradition Act. These included three new provisions 69.1(12), (14), and (15) designed to harmonize the extradition and refugee determination processes.

October 23, 2000 - Bill C-19 modified the description of 19(1)(j) and (l) concurrent with the proclamation of the Crimes Against Humanity and War Crimes Act. The grounds of inadmissibility are now based on the definitions of war crimes, crimes against humanity, and genocide contained in the new Act.

June 28, 2002 - Immigration and Refugee Protection Act came into force. The Act provides two specific grounds of inadmissibility for persons involved in war crimes, crimes against humanity and/or genocide, reporting of those inadmissible and issuance of removal orders. It also provides for the exclusion from the refugee determination process of persons involved in war crimes, crimes against humanity and/or genocide; and it limits appeal rights of persons involved in war crimes, crimes against humanity and/or genocide.
Appendix B – Crimes Against Humanity and War Crimes Act

The Crimes Against Humanity and War Crimes Act is a statute of the Parliament of Canada. The Act implements Canada’s obligations under the Rome Statute of the International Criminal Court and incorporates several grounds of jurisdiction:

- Ensures Canada holds jurisdiction over crimes committed on Canadian territory and by Canadians anywhere in the world;
- Gives Canada jurisdiction over crimes committed against Canadian nationals; and,
- Allows Canada to prosecute any individual present in Canada for crimes listed in the Crimes Against Humanity War Crimes Act, regardless of that individual’s nationality or where the crimes were committed.

Section 4 of the *Crimes Against Humanity and War Crimes Act

4 (1) Every person is guilty of an indictable offence who commits

(a) genocide;

(b) a crime against humanity; or

(c) a war crime.

(1.1) Every person who conspires or attempts to commit, is an accessory after the fact in relation to, or counsels in relation to, an offence referred to in subsection (1) is guilty of an indictable offence.

(2) Every person who commits an offence under subsection (1) or (1.1)

(a) shall be sentenced to imprisonment for life, if an intentional killing forms the basis of the offence; and

(b) is liable to imprisonment for life, in any other case.

(3) The definitions in this subsection apply in this section:

"crime against humanity" means murder, extermination, enslavement, deportation, imprisonment, torture, sexual violence, persecution or any other inhumane act or omission that is committed against any civilian population or any identifiable group and that, at the time and in the place of its commission, constitutes a crime against humanity according to customary international law or conventional international law or by virtue of its being criminal according to the general principles of law recognized by the community of nations, whether or not it constitutes a contravention of the law in force at the time and in the place of its commission.

"genocide" means an act or omission committed with intent to destroy, in whole or in part, an identifiable group of persons, as such, that, at the time and in the place of its commission, constitutes genocide according to customary international law or conventional international law or by virtue of its being criminal according to the general principles of law recognized by the community of nations, whether or not it constitutes a contravention of the law in force at the time and in the place of its commission.

"war crime" means an act or omission committed during an armed conflict that, at the time and in the place of its commission, constitutes a war crime according to customary international law or conventional international law applicable to armed conflicts, whether or not it constitutes a contravention of the law in force at the time and in the place of its commission.

(4) For greater certainty, crimes described in Articles 6 and 7 and paragraph 2 of Article 8 of the Rome Statute of the International Criminal Court are, as of July 17, 1998, crimes according to customary international law. This does not limit or prejudice in any way the application of existing or developing rules of international law.
The Rome Statute of the International Criminal Court is the treaty that established the International Criminal Court (ICC). It was adopted as a diplomatic conference in Rome on July 17, 1998 and it entered into force on July 1, 2002. As of 2015, 123 countries are party to the statute. The Rome Statute established 4 core international crimes: genocide, crimes against humanity, war crimes and crimes of aggression.

Articles 6, 7 and 8 pertain to definitions and scenarios of genocide (article 6), crimes against humanity (article 7) and war crimes (article 8)

Articles 6, 7 and 8

(a) Article 6—Genocide

For the purpose of this Statute, "genocide" means any of the following acts committed with intent to destroy, in whole or in part, a national, ethnical, racial or religious group, as such:

(a) Killing members of the group;
(b) Causing serious bodily or mental harm to members of the group;
(c) Deliberately inflicting on the group conditions of life calculated to bring about its physical destruction in whole or in part;
(d) Imposing measures intended to prevent births within the group;
(e) Forcibly transferring children of the group to another group.

(b) Article 7—Crimes against humanity

1. For the purpose of this Statute, "crime against humanity" means any of the following acts when committed as part of a widespread or systematic attack directed against any civilian population, with knowledge of the attack:

(a) Murder;
(b) Extermination;
(c) Enslavement;
(d) Deportation or forcible transfer of population;
(e) Imprisonment or other severe deprivation of physical liberty in violation of fundamental rules of international law;
(f) Torture;
(g) Rape, sexual slavery, enforced prostitution, forced pregnancy, enforced sterilization, or any other form of sexual violence of comparable gravity;
(h) Persecution against any identifiable group or collectivity on political, racial, national, ethnic, cultural, religious, gender as defined in paragraph 3, or other grounds that are universally recognized as impermissible under international law, in connection with any act referred to in this paragraph or any crime within the jurisdiction of the Court;
(i) Enforced disappearance of persons;

(j) The crime of apartheid;

(k) Other inhumane acts of a similar character intentionally causing great suffering, or serious injury to body or to mental or physical health.

2. For the purpose of paragraph 1:

(a) "Attack directed against any civilian population" means a course of conduct involving the multiple commission of acts referred to in paragraph 1 against any civilian population, pursuant to or in furtherance of a state or organizational policy to commit such attack;

(b) "Extermination" includes the intentional infliction of conditions of life, inter alia the deprivation of access to food and medicine, calculated to bring about the destruction of part of a population;

(c) "Enslavement" means the exercise of any of all of the powers attaching to the right of ownership over a person and includes the exercise of such power in the course of trafficking in persons, in particular women and children;

(d) "Deportation or forcible transfer of population" means forced displacement of the persons concerned by expulsion or other coercive acts from the area in which they are lawfully present, without grounds permitted under international law;

(e) "Torture" means the intentional infliction of severe pain or suffering, whether physical or mental, upon a person in the custody or under the control of the accused; except that torture shall not include pain or suffering arising only from, inherent in or incidental to, lawful sanctions;

(f) "Forced pregnancy" means the unlawful confinement of a woman forcibly made pregnant, with the intent of affecting the ethnic composition of any population or carrying out other grave violations of international law. This definition shall not in any way be interpreted as affecting national laws relating to pregnancy;

(g) "Persecution" means the intentional and severe deprivation of fundamental rights contrary to international law by reason of the identity of the group or collectivity;

(h) "The crime of apartheid" means inhumane acts of a character similar to those referred to in paragraph 1, committed in the context of an institutionalized regime of systematic oppression and domination by one racial group over any other racial group or groups and committed with the intention of maintaining that regime;

(i) "Enforced disappearance of persons" means the arrest, detention or abduction of persons by, or with the authorization, support or acquiescence of, a state or a political organization, followed by a refusal to acknowledge that deprivation of freedom or to give information on the fate or whereabouts of those persons, with the intention of removing them from the protection of the law for a prolonged period of time.

3. For the purpose of this Statute, it is understood that the term "gender" refers to the two sexes, male and female, within the context of society. The term "gender" does not indicate any meaning different from the above.

(c) Article 8—War crimes

1. The Court shall have jurisdiction in respect of war crimes in particular when committed as a part of a plan or policy or as part of a large-scale commission of such crimes.
2. For the purpose of this Statute, “war crimes” means:

(a) Grave breaches of the Geneva Conventions of 12 August 1949, namely, any of the following acts against persons or property protected under the provisions of the relevant Geneva Convention:

(i) Wilful killing;

(ii) Torture or inhuman treatment, including biological experiments;

(iii) Wilfully causing great suffering, or serious injury to body or health;

(iv) Extensive destruction and appropriation of property, not justified by military necessity and carried out unlawfully and wantonly;

(v) Compelling a prisoner of war or other protected person to serve in the forces of a hostile Power;

(vi) Wilfully depriving a prisoner of war or other protected person of the rights of fair and regular trial;

(vii) Unlawful deportation or transfer or unlawful confinement;

(viii) Taking of hostages.

(b) Other serious violations of the laws and customs applicable in international armed conflict, within the established framework of international law, namely, any of the following acts:

(i) Intentionally directing attacks against the civilian population as such or against individual civilians not taking direct part in hostilities;

(ii) Intentionally directing attacks against civilian objects, that is, objects which are not military objectives;

(iii) Intentionally directing attacks against personnel, installations, material, units or vehicles involved in a humanitarian assistance or peacekeeping mission in accordance with the Charter of the United Nations, as long as they are entitled to the protection given to civilians or civilian objects under the international law of armed conflict;

(iv) Intentionally launching an attack in the knowledge that such attack will cause incidental loss of life or injury to civilians or damage to civilian objects or widespread, long-term and severe damage to the natural environment which would be clearly excessive in relation to the concrete and direct overall military advantage anticipated;
ENF 18 Human or international rights violations

(v) Attacking or bombarding, by whatever means, towns, villages, dwellings or buildings which are undefined and which are not military objectives;

(vi) Killing or wounding a combatant who, having laid down his arms or having no longer means of defence, has surrendered at discretion;

(vii) Making improper use of a flag of truce, of the flag or of the military insignia and uniform of the enemy or of the United Nations, as well as of the distinctive emblems of the Geneva Conventions, resulting in death or serious personal injury;

(viii) The transfer, directly or indirectly, by the Occupying Power of parts of its own civilian population into the territory it occupies, or the deportation or transfer of all or parts of the population of the occupied territory within or outside this territory;

(ix) Intentionally directing attacks against buildings dedicated to religion, education, art, science or charitable purposes, historic monuments, hospitals and places where the sick and wounded are collected, provided they are not military objectives;

(x) Subjecting persons who are in the power of an adverse party to physical mutilation or to medical or scientific experiments of any kind which are neither justified by the medical, dental or hospital treatment of the person concerned nor carried out in his or her interest, and which cause death to or seriously endanger the health of such person or persons;

(xi) Killing or wounding treacherously individuals belonging to the hostile nation or army;

(xii) Declaring that no quarter will be given;

(xiii) Destroying or seizing the enemy's property unless such destruction or seizure be imperatively demanded by the necessities of war;

(xiii) Declaring abolished, suspended or inadmissible in a court of law the rights and actions of the nationals of the hostile party;

(xiv) Compelling the nationals of the hostile party to take part in the operations of war directed against their own country, even if they were in the belligerent's service before the commencement of the war;

(xvi) Pillaging a town or place, even when taken by assault;

(xv) Employing poison or poisoned weapons;

(xvi) Employing asphyxiating, poisonous or other gases, and all analogous liquids, materials or devices;

(xix) Employing bullets which expand or flatten easily in the human body, such as bullets with a hard envelope which does not entirely cover the core or is pierced with incisions;

(xx) Employing weapons, projectiles and material and methods of warfare which are of a nature to cause superfluous injury or unnecessary suffering or which are inherently indiscriminate in violation of the international law of armed conflict, provided that such weapons, projectiles and material and methods of warfare are the subject of a comprehensive prohibition and are included in an annex to this Statute, by an amendment in accordance with the relevant provisions set forth in articles 121 and 123;

(xxi) Committing outrages upon personal dignity, in particular humiliating and degrading treatment;
ENF 18 Human or international rights violations

(xxii) Committing rape, sexual slavery, enforced prostitution, forced pregnancy, as defined in article 7, paragraph 2 (f), enforced sterilization, or any other form of sexual violence also constituting a grave breach of the Geneva Conventions;

(xxiii) Utilizing the presence of a civilian or other protected person to render certain points, areas or military forces immune from military operations;

(xxiv) Intentionally directing attacks against buildings, material, medical units and transport, and personnel using the distinctive emblems of Geneva Conventions in conformity with international law;

(xxv) Intentionally using starvation of civilians as a method of warfare by depriving them of objects indispensable to their survival, including wilfully impeding relief supplies as provided for under the Geneva Conventions;

(xxvi) Conscripting or enlisting children under the age of fifteen years into the national armed forces or using them to participate actively in hostilities.

(c) In the case of an armed conflict not of an international character, serious violations of article 3 common to the four Geneva Conventions of 12 August 1949, namely, any of the following acts committed against persons taking no active part in the hostilities, including members of armed forces who have laid down their arms and those placed hors de combat by sickness, wounds, detention or any other cause:

(i) Violence to life and person, in particular murder of all kinds, mutilation, cruel treatment and torture;

(ii) Committing outrages upon personal dignity, in particular humiliating and degrading treatment;

(iii) Taking of hostages;

(iv) The passing of sentences and the carrying out of executions without previous judgement pronounced by a regularly constituted court, affording all judicial guarantees which are generally recognized as indispensable.

(d) Paragraph 2(c) applies to armed conflicts not of an international character and thus does not apply to situations of internal disturbances and tensions, such as riots, isolated and sporadic acts of violence or other acts of a similar nature.

(e) Other serious violations of the laws and customs applicable in armed conflicts not of an international character, within the established framework of international law, namely, any of the following acts:

(i) Intentionally directing attacks against the civilian population as such or against individual civilians not taking direct part in hostilities;

(ii) Intentionally directing attacks against buildings, material, medical units and transport, and personnel using the distinctive emblems of the Geneva Conventions in conformity with international law;

(iii) Intentionally directing attacks against personnel, installations, material, units or vehicles involved in a humanitarian assistance or peacekeeping mission in accordance with the Charter of the United Nations, as long as they are entitled to the protection given objects under the law of armed conflict;

(iv) Intentionally directing attacks against buildings dedicated to religion, education, art, science or charitable purposes, historic monuments, hospitals and places where the sick and wounded are collected, provided they are not military objectives;
ENF 18 Human or international rights violations

(v) Pillaging a town or place, even when taken by assault;

(vi) Committing rape, sexual slavery, enforced prostitution, forced pregnancy, as defined in article 7, paragraph 2(f), enforced sterilization, and any other form of sexual violence also constituting a serious violation of article 3 common to the four Geneva Conventions;

(vii) Conscriptioning or enlisting children under the age of fifteen years into armed forces or groups or using them to participate actively in hostilities;

(viii) Ordering the displacement of the civilian population for reasons related to the conflict, unless the security of the civilians involved or imperative military reasons so demand;

(ix) Killing or wounding treacherously a combatant adversary;

(x) Declaring that no quarter will be given;

(xi) Subjecting persons who are in the power of another party to the conflict to physical mutilation or to medical or scientific experiments of any kind which are neither justified by the medical, dental or hospital treatment of the person concerned nor carried out in his or her interest, and which cause death to or seriously endanger the health of such person or persons;

(xii) Destroying or seizing the property of an adversary unless such destruction or seizure be imperatively demanded by the necessities of the conflict.

(f) Paragraph 2(e) applies to armed conflicts not of an international character and thus does not apply to situations of internal disturbances and tensions, such as riots, isolated and sporadic acts of violence or other acts of a similar nature. It applies to armed conflicts that take place in the territory of a state when there is protracted armed conflict between governmental authorities and organized armed groups or between such groups.