

LCC | CDC

Living Law | Pursuing Justice | Renewing Hope

Law Commission of Canada
Call for Applications
LCC Emerging Scholars Program (May-August 2025)

March 2025

The Law Commission of Canada (LCC) is accepting applications to its Emerging Scholars Program for the Summer 2025 term.

Program Description

The Law Commission of Canada Emerging Scholars Program recognizes doctoral candidates as emerging scholars in law and law reform. The Program provides support over a four-month period (the duration of an academic semester) to doctoral candidates in law, law and society, or other related disciplines at a Canadian university.

As they continue work on their doctoral thesis, LCC Emerging Scholars will have an opportunity to make an innovative and meaningful contribution to the LCC. That contribution will take the form of community engagement in keeping with the LCC's mission and orientations. Examples include educational workshops, podcast episodes, community group roundtables, etc.

LCC Emerging Scholars receive $10,000 CAD. The LCC aims to support two scholars per term.

Parameters and Process

Candidates for the LCC Emerging Scholars Program must be Canadian citizens or permanent residents and in the final stage of their doctoral work at a Canadian university.

Please submit your application, consisting of the following elements, for the LCC's consideration by March 25, 2025:

- Your curriculum vitae, indicating your current year and stage in your PhD program.
- 1,000-word (maximum) description of your doctoral thesis:
 - Your research questions, methodology, theoretical framework, and anticipated impact on Canadian law and society; and
 - Connections between your thesis and the work and approach of the LCC.

Law Commission
of Canada

Commission du droit
du Canada

Canada

- 1,000-word (maximum) proposal for your community engagement contribution to the LCC:
 - A concept note that describes your vision, rationale, objectives, and an implementation plan.
- Names and contact information of two referees, including your doctoral supervisor.

Applications should be submitted to projects-projets@lcc-cdc.gc.ca. The LCC will aim to notify applicants of its decision within three weeks of the application deadline.

For additional information, please visit the LCC website.