

Cultural Property Export Process

Is the object more than 50 years old or was it made by a person no longer living?

Does it meet the criteria established by the Canadian Cultural Property Export Control List?

No

No permit is required. The object may be exported.

Yes

The exporter must submit an application to the Canada Border Service Agency (CBSA).

Has the object been in Canada less than 35 years, is the export temporary or is the export the return of a foreign object loaned to a Canadian institution?

Yes

CBSA issues a permit automatically.

No

CBSA refers the application for permanent export to an Expert Examiner.

Is the object sufficiently significant to refuse the permit?

No

The expert examiner determines that the object is not of outstanding significance and of national importance. CBSA issues a permit.

Yes

The expert examiner determines that the object is of outstanding significance and of national importance. CBSA refuses the permit.

Does the applicant appeal the refusal?

Yes

The applicant appeals the refusal to the Canadian Cultural Property Export Review Board (CCPERB).

Does CCPERB uphold the refusal?

No

The permit remains refused and a new application can only be submitted after 2 years.

No

CCPERB grants the appeal and CBSA issues a permit.

Ye

CCPERB upholds the refusal and sets a delay period of 2 to 6 months. Designated organizations are notified that the object is available for purchase.

Is a designated organization interested in purchasing?

No

There is no offer to purchase. An export permit may be requested upon expiry of the delay period.

Option

The applicant or designated organization can request a Fair Cash Offer (FCO) determination by CCPERB.

Does the applicant wish to sell the object?

Information

canada.ca/en/canadian-heritage/services/export-permits-cultural-property/guide-exporting

To consult the Cultural Property Export and Import Act: laws-lois.justice.gc.ca/eng/acts/C-51

Yes

A designated organization purchases the object (with or without the assistance of a $\underline{\text{Movable Cultural Property Grant}}$).

The object remains in Canada.